

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and should be required to be balanced in its treatment of public issues. If it airs "Stolen Honor", a clearly partisan attack on John Kerry, it should be required to air "Going Up River", a documentary on Kerry's wartime and post-war service, as well.
